1.4 Academic Programmes

The University offers a wide range of programmes, both short-term and long-term, leading to Certificates, Diplomas, Undergraduate Degrees, Postgraduate Degrees and Doctoral Degrees, which are conventional as well as innovative. Most of these programmes are developed after an initial need assessment/demand for such Programmes. They are launched with a view to fulfill the learner's needs for:

- Improvement of skills,
- Acquisition of professional qualifications,
- Continuing education and professional development at work place,
- Self-enrichment,
- Diversification and updating of knowledge,
- Empowerment, and
- Certification.

1.5 Course Preparation

Self Learning Materials (SLMs), as we call the printed materials in distance mode of education, are prepared by a team of experts selected from different Universities/Institutions all over the country as well as the in-house faculty. This material is scrutinised by the content experts, supervised by the instructors/unit designers and edited by the language experts before they are finally sent for printing. Similarly, audio and video cassettes are produced in consultation with the course writers, in-house faculty and producers. This material is previewed and reviewed by the faculty as well as outside media experts and edited or modified, wherever necessary, before they are finally dispatched to the Study Centres and telecasted.

1.6 Credit System

The University follows the 'Credit System' for all of its programmes. Each credit amounts to 30 hours of study comprising all learning activities which includes reading and comprehending the printed material, listening to audio, watching of video, attending counselling sessions, teleconferences and writing assignments. Thus, a four-credit course involves 120 hours. The credit system helps the learner to understand the academic effort required to successfully complete a course or programme. Completion of an academic programme (Degree, Diploma or Certificate) requires successful clearing of both the assignment and the term-end examination of each course in a programme.

2.0 ABOUT THE SCHOOL AND THE PROGRAMME

The School of Social Sciences (SOSS) has developed the programme of Gandhi and Peace Studies jointly with Gandhi Smriti & Darshan Samiti (GSDS) Rajghat, New Delhi.

The School of Social Sciences (SOSS) is one of the 21 Schools of the Indira Gandhi National Open University. Centre for Gandhi and Peace Studies (CGPS) at the SOSS seeks to provide quality education and training in multidisciplinary areas and undertakes research and development in the areas of Gandhi and Peace Studies. The dawn of the 21st century has heralded a world rife and riddled with a number of new and complex conflicts at different levels in the society. Resolution to these conflicts seems even more challenging than anything ever experienced in human history. Pundits and policy makers are at a loss even to fathom the depth and density of the resulting crises.

At the same time numerous newly formulated rational methods as well as faith-based approaches embedded in different cultures and traditions are being considered both for an understanding of the nature and dimensions of conflicts but also for crafting the much-needed strategies to resolve differences, reach reconciliation and ultimately usher in transcendental peace—all towards achieving global consensus for a humane and ecologically viable new global order.

Keeping this in perspective, Indira Gandhi National Open University (IGNOU) has set up in the School of Social Sciences an interdisciplinary teaching, research and practice centre: Centre for Gandhi and Peace Studies (CGPS).

The prime objective of the CGPS is to facilitate students to participate creatively in all aspects of peace studies—peace-building in conflict and post-conflict societies. Analysis of systemic and overt violence and the causes of war, of human rights and peace-building, and of conflict resolution alternatives leads students to a deeper understanding of the complexities of conflict situations, the social impact of non-violent movements, conflict resolution practice, and peace studies.

Towards this objective, the CGPS has evolved a rigorous academic curriculum developed by the leading Indian scholars in the field that helps students to develop critical thinking and analytical skills as well as alternative methodologies for research. Together the professional engagement of faculty members encourages students to develop new models of peace-building and link theory with practice.

The broad themes that underpin the range of ‘taught’ and research programmes of the Centre at graduate and post-graduate levels include:

Contending theories of conflict, the causes of war, organized violence and the conditions for peace, their basic assumptions, and their relationship to present global policies, structures, and events.

Alternative approaches to peace-making, their basic assumptions and methodologies, and their application to current conflict situations.

The role of culture and cross-cultural communication in conflict situations, conflict resolution, international negotiations, realization of human rights, and the role of identity labels such as gender, race, ethnicity and their role in conflict dynamics and conflict resolution. Development of skills in critical analysis and conflict resolution alternatives.

Values and ethics embedded in different religious traditions as well as ways of fostering reconciliation and co-existence.

Gandhi’s views and perceptions on economic, social, gender, political, environmental and sustainable development issues including critiques and evaluation of Gandhian concepts, its relevance in the contemporary world and contributions made by distinguished thinkers and scholars to the development of Gandhian thought and philosophy.

Role of international organisations including importantly the United Nations on preventive diplomacy and process of peace-making, peace-keeping and peace-building and peace-enforcement to seek answers to critical questions such as non-violence and the skill required by practitioners of non-violence; and how could principles of non-violence be applied to contemporary conflicts.

The Gandhi Smriti and Darshan Samiti (GSDS) was formed in September 1984 by the merger of Gandhi Darshan at Rajghat and Gandhi Smriti at 5, Tees January Marg. The basic aim and objective of the GSDS is to spread the message, mission and thought of Mahatma Gandhi through various socio-educational and cultural programmes. The International Centre of Gandhian Studies and Research is the education wing of the GSDS, and is managed jointly with IGNOU. Gandhi Smriti is a national memorial where the epic life of the Father of Nation ended on Friday, January 30, 1948. The hallowed house which treasures many memories of the Mahatma now forms part of our rich national heritage. The exhibition on the Mahatma, the room he lived in and the prayer-ground where he fell a martyr with God’s name on his lips attracts a large number of visitors.

International Centre of Gandhian Studies and Peace Research (ICGSPR) is located in Gandhi Darshan Complex at Rajghat. The ICGSPR was established during the 125th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi, was charged with the responsibility of propagating Gandhian thought both nationally and internationally through education, research and extension programmes.

To make the concept underlying the opening of ICGSPR a reality, Gandhi Smriti and Darshan Samiti and Indira Gandhi National Open University signed a Memorandum of Understanding on August 09, 2003. Since then the ICGSPR has marched fast in the direction of its mandate. Within a period of five years, it launched Certificate, Diploma, M.A. and M.Phil./Ph.D Programmes both in distance and face-to-face modes. Further, the ICGSPR has taken steps to set up a number of Peace Missions all over the country especially in the North-East and Jammu & Kashmir. The Centre offers research facilities to scholars from India and abroad, and provides necessary inputs on Gandhian Philosophy and allied subjects at one place.

2.7 Assignments

In all the courses under this modular programme, the weightage for assignment carries 30%. Therefore, the student has to take his/her assignment very seriously. There is one assignment for each course. The main purpose of the assignment is to inspire you to thoroughly read the study material and also to test your comprehension of the material. It is advised that you do not reproduce the study material, rather apply your judgment, and if possible consult books and related text materials before answering the assignments. However, you do not have to worry about non-availability of extra reading materials for working on the assignments.

Submit assignment prior to Term End Examination (TEE) failing which you will not be issued hall ticket to appear in TEE.

Points to be Remembered

- Assignments, after evaluation will be sent back to you along with a copy of the assessment sheet carrying the comments of the evaluator on your assignment. It will help you to improve upon while answering your future assignments.
- If you fail to get pass grade in any assignment, you have to submit it again. However, once you get the pass grade in an assignment, you cannot resubmit it for the improvement of the grade.
- Remember that you have to write the answers of the assignments in your own handwriting and should not send typed assignments.

Eligibility

The credit transfer scheme is applicable to only those candidates who have not completed their degree from any other recognized University and yet are willing to complete it through IGNOU as per the rules provided.

Modalities

5. TIPS FOR EFFECTIVE LEARNING IN OPEN UNIVERSITY

How to approach your studies: It would be good for you to go through the Programme Guides as well as the Handbooks provided by the University. This will help you to know exactly about the facilities being extended and how you can make best use of these in your learning. That is, you should have an idea of what to expect from the system and how best to use the support being provided.

Quasi-permanent separation: To bridge your semi-permanent separation from your counsellor and to enable you to take advantage of the flexibilities provided in the Open Distance Learning (ODL) system, provision for Face to Face interaction has been made. Moreover, you can contact your teachers at the Headquarters through phone and e-mail. However, the onus of learning is on you. You must make full use of the flexibility, facilities and innovativeness provided by the system.

Adhere to the schedule of operations: Various activities in the ODL system are time bound and the details are given in the programme guides and the handbooks sent to you. Adherence to the Schedule of Operations shall help you enormously in completion of the courses. As a thumb rule, if you study three hours a day regularly, you should be successful in the minimum stipulated time.

Studying at your pace and place: You can learn at your pace and place, but it would help if you periodically revise what you have learnt. This would also enable you to assess as to how much has to be done. The DE system provides for an in-built teacher in the Self Instructional Materials (SIMs). Your pace of learning could be faster and effective if you abide by the instructions given to you in the SIMs and follow the sequence and steps suggested therein, as the objective of these access devices is to regulate your pace of learning.

Taking notes: In SIMs, some space has been provided to take important notes. You should identify keywords/terms, and put remarks while going through it. This facilitates cross-referencing. You fulfill answer/solve problems in the Self-assessment Questions (SAQs) and Terminal Questions (TQs) yourself rather than looking for solutions at the end.

Using media effectively: The audio-visual learning is faster and can be more effective. That is why multi-media is one of the integral components of our multiple media instructional package. For complementing your learning with the help of multi-media effectively, you should visit your study centre for counselling and insist that your counsellor shows AIV programmes. Such visits will also help you obtain the latest information on broadcast and telecast of programmes and tele-conferences being held. Now, IGNOU has a 24 hr TV Channel Gyan Darshan and a countrywide network of FM radio stations. You should contact your cable operators to beam Gyan Darshan. In case it is not possible for you to visit your SCs for some reason, you can procure these cassettes/CDs from the University for convenient viewing.

Preparing Assignment Responses: The separation between the teacher and the taught in the ODL system is bridged through dialogue established by continuous assessment. Your assignment responses provide an opportunity to your counsellor to guide you and pace your learning depending on your progress. Therefore, you must write your assignment yourself, in your words depending on the scope of every question. In some questions, you might be required to give a brief outline while in others you may be asked to give your justifications/demonstrate your skills and knowledge/give detailed description etc. It is also possible that you may be required to refer to a particular source of information or data and present your analysis. If possible, discuss implications and suggest application and/or give illustrations.

When you have answered the assignments, pause for a while and recheck your response to make sure that:

You must keep a copy of each of your assignments and file them in order, separately, for each course. While submitting your assignment at your Study Centre / Programme Centre, you must insist on obtaining acknowledgement. In case you send your assignment by post, keep the registration slip as evidence. In case of any difficulty or unconvincing response at the Study Centre, please contact your Regional Centre or the Headquarter. Normally, you should obtain your Tutor Marked Assignment within 45 days. In case you do not receive your evaluated TMAs with tutor comments in the stipulated period you should check with the Study Centre Coordinator. Once you receive the evaluated assignment responses, go through tutor comments. A careful reading of the comments should give you an idea as to how you can improve your responses in future.

Learning from Counselling and Peer Group: In order to make the best use of the counselling sessions, you should have read the relevant units before going for the counselling session. This will enable you to have useful interactions with your counsellor and peer group. Participate in the discussion with an open mind. Take note of important points identified by other peer group members and the counsellor. Do not hesitate to clarify doubts, even if they are trivial.

Taking the Term-end Examination: In our system of education, career prospects are influenced by the performance in examinations. So we should approach examinations with some caution. However, this should not cause anxiety. Another important point to be kept in mind is that you must submit your assignments as per schedule before the examination.

Preparing for the Examinations: The surest way to success in any examination is to conscientiously employ effective study techniques over a period of time. For example, if you follow the tips provided here, your chances of success will improve. If you follow them, you will certainly remember more, have a better understanding, and be able to organise your ideas quickly and effectively.

Even solving previous examination question papers and getting your answers checked by your counsellors should help improve your performance. You can download these from the IGNOU website www.ignou.ac.in. Revision of text materials plays a vital role in your preparation for the examinations. The following are two good reasons for doing regular revisions right from the start:

You may not have enough time to revise everything you have studied in a course/programme at the last minute.

You will find the latter materials easier to study if you have sound understanding of what has been studied earlier.

On the Examination Day: When you receive the question paper.

Read the instructions and the question paper right through very carefully paying attention to each question.

Be objective and assess what precisely the questions demand of you.

Budget your time; that is, you should carefully allocate your time according to the weightage given to each question.

Plan your answer and develop a sense of priority.

MGPP-017 : PROJECT WORK (8 Credits)

This full-year project (eight credits) provides scope for you to develop and demonstrate basic research skills.

The project work consists of a review of the scholarly literature relating to a research question selected by you and relevant to your area of specialisation. The project process begins with the identification of a topic and ends with the submission of a well-structured research document of about 20,000 words. A research plan or proposal of about 2000 words has to be submitted to the University for approval before proceeding with the project work.

While project work, by definition, is a self-directed work, there will be a Academic Supervisor to advise and guide you at different stages of the project. The Faculty of Gandhi Studies has prepared a Handbook containing detailed advice on the preparation of the proposal and other aspects of the project

The project work will be evaluated at the headquarters. The viva-voce will be conducted and will carry 30% weightage.

Project will be evaluated along with term-end examination papers. Project report received on or before 31st may will be declared alongwith June TEE result and these projects received thereafter and upto 30th November will be accounted for Dec. TEE. This means that project should reach the University not later than 1st June (for June term-end examinations) and 1st December for December term-end examinations). Project received after the submission dates will be evaluated in the next exam cycle.
